VANDERBILTS OFF IN "WAYFARER" TO SEE AMERICA FIRST

Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt of New York have become converts to the "see America first" slogan since the European war made sojourning in Europe dangerous. They recently bought Harry Payne Whitney's yacht Wayfarer, and are now on their way to the Panama exposition via the Panama canal.

Great Britain needs 15,000 more men to manufacture armament and munitions of war. Unless refuse to permit entrance of non-union men and drastic action may have to be taken.

NATIONAL FORESTS ARE FLOURISHING UNDER ATTENTION

Public Ranges Show That Raising of Cattle and Horses is Increasing While Itinerant Sheep Raising is Diminishing

ALBUQUERQUE, Feb. 14.—Selling some billion and a half board feet of timber and supervising the cutting of several thousand different acres, overlooking the raising of more than 1,500,000 cattle and 7,500,000 sheep, and building more than 600 miles of road, 2,000 miles of trail, 3,000 miles of telephone line, and 700 miles of fire line are some of the things which the government forest service did last year, as disclosed in the report by the chief forester for 1914. These activities were all on the national forests, which at present total about 163,000,000 acres.

There is need, says the chief forester, to increase the cut of timber from the national forests wherever a fair price can be obtained for the stumpage, because a great deal of it is mature and ought to be taken out to make room for young growth. Unfavorable conditions in the lumber trade caused new sales of national forest timber to fall off somewhat during the past year, though the operations on outstanding sales contracts brought the total cut above that of the previous year by 30,000,000 board feet. There was, however, a big increase in small timber sales, these numbering 8,238 in 1914 against 6,132 the previous year. Desirable blocks of national forest timber have been appraised and put on the market, and it is expected that these will find purchasers when conditions in the lumber industry improve. All told, the government received $1,294,053.66 from the sale of timber on the forests in 1914. The receipts from all sources totaled $2,427,710.21.

After eight years of experience stockmen are well satisfied, says the chief forester, with the way the grazing of livestock on the forests is regulated, and have even urged upon congress the application of the same method of control to the unreserved public range. Almost 25,000 permits for grazing stock on the national forests, and these paid to the government in the fiscal year 1914 fees amounting to over a million dollars. The present tendency to raise fewer sheep and goats and more cattle and horses is shown in the fact that the number of cattle and horse permits on the western forests increased last year by 1,579, while the number of sheep and goat permits fell off by a total of 268. The western stock business, the forester points out, is becoming attached to the soil, and the itinerant sheep grower and the speculator in cattle are giving place to the permanent resident and owner of improved ranch property. The latter is always given preference in the use of national forest range.

Some $40,000 was spent by the forest service during the year for permanent improvements on the national forests to make them accessible and to insure their protection from fire. These improvements include 20 miles of new road, 2,150 miles of trail, 2,063 miles of telephone line, 775 miles of fire line, and 104 lookout structures, besides bridges, corrals, fences, and cabins. In addition, 512 miles of road were built for the public by the use of 10 per cent of the national forest receipts, as authorized by congress.

Under another law, 25 per cent of the national forest receipts for the year, amounting to $386,593.39, were paid over to the various states in which the forests lie for the benefit of county schools and roads.

Since 1909, when systematic classification of national forest lands was begun, more than 10,000,000 acres have been eliminated. Scattered interior tracts which it is not profitable to eliminate are opened to settlement through listing, which allows them to take up under the forest homestead law. Anyone may apply to have land within a forest examined to determine whether it is best suited for agriculture, and if found so it is opened to settlement under this law. During the year 2,690 tracts, totaling 222,483 acres, applied for by individuals were opened for entry. By elimination and listing the percentage of unpatented agricultural land within the national forests, never large, has been reduced to a very small amount.

London cable says that Franco ministers of the allied countries have made a definite agreement to become jointly responsible for advances in Serbia, Belgium and other present and future minor allies. Whatever loans are thus made will be joint responsibility of England, France and Russia for interest and principal.
